COLOMBIA

This year, SFS worked extensively in Colombia to help a top U.S. regional partner during its time of need.

BRAZIL

SFS International Fellow, Leonardo Coutinho, was awarded two merit medals for exceptional support to Brazil's national defense.

Disinformation ran rampant in the Colombia national protests this year.

The SFS Situation Report (SITREP) about the “Asymmetric Assault on Colombia” was our top product in 2021 reflecting a new 360° approach to dissemination.

and security worldwide

The current protests in Colombia are not just a socio-economic crisis, it's an asymmetric assault on the state institutions and society.

This is a threat Colombia cannot solve alone. It requires a more comprehensive effort and democratic forces regionwide to understand that as goes Colombia, so goes the rest of Latin America.

REPORT IMPACT

On May 3, 2021, Colombian President Alvaro Uribe had a contentious interview about the Colombia protests on CNN en Español with popular TV host, Fernando Del Rincón. Weeks later, on May 18, Joseph Humire discussed the SFS report on the Colombia protests with the same journalist, on the same show and about the same topic – but with a different result. After the interview, CNN en Español helped disseminate the SFS report on its website and social media platforms.

US BORDER CRISIS

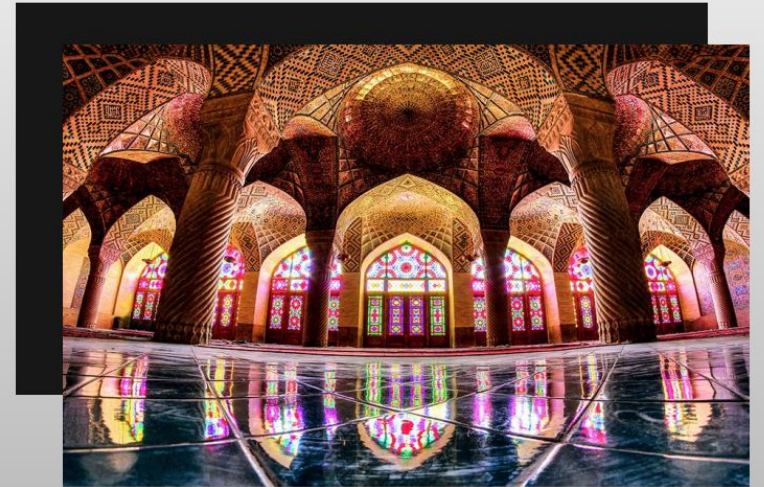

SFS continuously briefed several U.S. Senators and DHS officials, and held two webinars, on the multidimensional aspects of the U.S. border crisis. Including new aspects related to Venezuela and Human Smuggling Facilitators.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE PUBLICATIONS

SFS Executive Director Joseph Humire published two featured articles in SOUTHCOM's leading military magazine called Diálogo, distributed to partner militaries throughout Latin America and the Caribbean. He also participated in a virtual think tank analysis for CENTCOM about Iran's Qods Force activity outside of the Middle East.
